Global Multi-Asset ZAR-denominated

Q1 2024

Market overview

The first quarter of 2024 (Q1) brought a continuation of the relatively bullish investor sentiment towards global equities seen in the last months of 2023, as prospects for growth in the US were buoyed by positive company earnings reports and supportive economic data that increased the likelihood of a “soft landing” for the economy. On the other hand, global bonds were weaker as inflation proved somewhat higher than expected (the price of Brent crude oil rose roughly 14%) and major central banks kept interest rates on hold, prompting pundits to move out their rate cut expectations to the second half of the year. Still, they and the US Federal Reserve are roughly aligned in their forecasts of a 25bp interest rate cut in each of Q2, Q3 and Q4, starting at the Fed’s 11-12 June FOMC meeting.

Global equity (as measured by the MSCI ACWI) delivered a total return of 8.2% in Q1 compared to 11.0% in Q4, while developed market equities produced 8.9% and emerging market equities returned only 2.4% (MSCI Emerging Markets Index – all in US$). Global bonds posted -2.1% (Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond Index, in US$).

United States

In the US, stubborn inflation (and the Fed’s unwavering fight against it) was one of the few negative factors denting investor sentiment. At 3.2% y/y, February CPI was marginally higher than its January levels, with rising energy prices making themselves felt. At the same time, the Core PCE Price Index, the Fed’s preferred inflation measure, came in at 2.8% y/y, as expected. Also in line with expectations, the Federal Reserve kept benchmark interest rates on hold at its March FOMC meeting, and is forecast to do the same in May. For the quarter, the Dow Jones produced 6.1%, the Nasdaq 9.3%, and the S&P 500 10.6% (all in US$). The S&P’s 12-month forward P/E ratio rose to a heady 21X at quarter end from 19.5X at the start of the quarter, with price gains outpacing those of earnings. Although the breadth of the gains improved from 2023’s narrow focus, a look at the Equal-Weighted S&P Index shows that it was still large-cap shares driving the outperformance of the market during the quarter.

United Kingdom

In the UK, the Bank of England (BoE) kept its main interest rate unchanged at 5.25% at its February meeting, saying its next move would remain data-dependent. Similar to the US, the market is pricing in the start of rate cuts from June 2024. February CPI fell sharply to 3.4% y/y from 4.0% in January, helping reinforce the prospect of rate cuts. With Q4 2023 GDP growth reported at -0.3% after -0.1% in Q3, the economy entered a technical recession, and only slight improvement is expected in 2024: the BoE forecasts flat (0%) GDP growth for 2024 as a whole. In Q1 2024, the FTSE 100 returned 3.0% in US$.

Euro area

In the Euro area, optimistic corporate news sent European shares to record highs in mid-March, with upbeat earnings updates and some M&A news boosting investor confidence. Euro area CPI fell to 2.6% y/y in February, but was still uncomfortably above the ECB’s target of 2.0%. As expected, the ECB left rates unchanged, even as a softer outlook for inflation and economic growth bolstered expectations for cuts starting in June. Q4 2023 GDP growth in the region was reported at a mere 0.1% (q/q annualised). In European equity markets, France’s CAC 40 returned 6.6% in Q1, while Germany’s DAX delivered 7.9% (both in US$).

Japan

It proved to be a momentous quarter for Japan -- the BOJ announced its first rate hike in 17 years, setting a new short-term rate target of 0-0.1% and ending eight years of negative interest rates. This came amid a rise in March CPI to 2.4% y/y, even as the latest GDP data showed the economy grew by only 0.4% (q/q annualised) in Q4 2023, and personal consumption marked its third consecutive quarterly decline. The mixed data added to uncertainty around how soon the BOJ could raise rates again, but the equity market reacted positively as the Nikkei was among the world’s top-performing markets with a 13.2% return in Q1, after delivering a remarkable 22.6% in 2023.

China

China experienced a mixed quarter of sharp equity selling followed by some recovery, as the Chinese authorities enacted measures to stabilise the capital market and bolster economic growth. The PBOC cut the bank reserve requirement ratio by 50bps, followed by a historic 25bp cut in the 5-year Loan Rate. These moves significantly boosted market sentiment. GDP growth for Q4 2023 came in at 5.2% y/y, surpassing the government’s 5% target level, and the new 2024 target was set at 5.0%, as expected. This is expected to be even more difficult to achieve, due to prevailing headwinds such as weak consumer demand, industry oversupply and lower consumer and business confidence. Analysts foresee further policy support in the months ahead to further support market confidence and sustainable growth. Chinese markets were still fairly weak in Q1, with Hong Kong’s Hang Seng returning -2.7% and the MSCI China delivering -2.2%, both in US$.

Emerging markets

With the exception of India, which returned 6.1% (in US$) for the quarter, larger emerging equity markets performed poorly. Brazil’s Bovespa was among the weakest with a return of -7.4%, while the MSCI Turkey fell -5.6%, the MSCI South Africa delivered -6.7% and South Korea’s KOSPI produced -0.3% (all in US$).

Currency

The rand lost 3.5% against a stronger US$ for the quarter, 2.7% versus the UK pound and 0.9% against the euro as sentiment toward SA remained depressed.

Performance

For Q1 2024, the fund returned 2.6% (net of fees), compared to global inflation (based on the OECD Major 7 CPI Total Index) measuring 4.3%. For the 12 months to 31 March, the fund produced 13.0% (net of fees) while global inflation measured 10.0%.

The fund's allocation to equities made the most significant contribution to absolute returns, while fixed income exposure hurt returns. Property exposure also held back returns marginally.

Within equities, our core exposure to global equities chosen by machine learning made the largest positive contribution to returns. Tactical positions also made a significant contribution. Looking at the core exposure, the portfolio outperformed on 30 out of 64 trading days during the quarter, offering an unfavourable hit rate of around 47%. This was accompanied by a modestly negative skew (i.e. the contribution from outperforming days did not offset the lag from underperforming days), resulting in the fund underperforming over the quarter.

A key attribute of portfolio construction within the fund is that active country, currency and industry exposures are constrained to ensure that style and idiosyncratic stock risk are the main drivers of active returns. The portfolio's style exposure proved to be a significant headwind over the course of the quarter, accounting for almost all the underperformance. Within style, exposure to smaller cap and higher volatility companies proved to be the most significant drag on relative returns. Stock selection had a modest negative impact over the quarter.

In terms of tactical positions, European, Japanese, US financials and Asia ex- Japan equities were beneficial to returns. However, a short position in the US stock market weighed on performance.

Turning to fixed income holdings, both the fund's core exposure and tactical positions in fixed income hurt returns. Within core exposure, absolute performance was hurt by holdings in developed market government bonds as investors pushed back their expectations for interest rate cuts by central banks. Some positions in corporate bonds and emerging market sovereign debt, however, aided performance. The fund's performance was also hurt by its long duration position. In terms of our tactical positions, the main detractor from returns was US Treasuries.

In global property, absolute performance was driven by the weakness in real estate investment trusts in the quarter. The portfolio outperformed on 33 out of 64 days during the quarter, offering an attractive hit rate of around 52%. This was offset by a slightly negative skew.

The property portion of the fund is also managed by constraining active country, currency and industry risk at the portfolio construction phase. This ensures that style and idiosyncratic stock risk are the main drivers of active returns. Both style as well as stock selection had a muted impact over the quarter. Within style, exposure to small size and low momentum companies detracted from performance, but was offset by exposure to cheap valuation and high beta companies.

Strategy and positioning

In January, we established a new position in Hang Seng Index futures. Price falls in Chinese shares begin to look increasingly emotionally driven to us. Valuations have improved and forward earnings measures have turned positive over the quarter.

In March, we sold positions in European banks and US banks and reduced non-US equity positions. These changes reflected strong price performance and a reduction in the attractiveness of valuations.

Outlook

At the end of 2023, the consensus outlook for 2024 was broadly one of slowing global growth supporting further disinflation. Versus this, the strength of US growth and US earnings have positively surprised the market and supported strong equity returns. In turn, this has fostered further risk seeking behaviour in equities and corporate credit and somewhat skittish risk aversion in government bonds.

Central banks seem broadly comfortable with the path of inflation but don't want to cut while growth remains strong and inflation above target levels. Bond markets now appear to have priced in a significant portion of this and offer attractive real yields and potential diversification if growth falters. Equity valuations look demanding in places (most notably the US), but not detached from earnings. □

Collective Investment Schemes (unit trusts) are generally medium- to long-term investments. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future investment performance. Unit trust prices are calculated on a net asset value basis. This means the price is the total net market value of all assets of the unit trust fund divided by the total number of units of the fund. Any market movements – for example in share prices, bond prices, money market prices or currency fluctuations – relevant to the underlying assets of the fund may cause the value of the underlying assets to go up or down. As a result, the price of your units may go up or down. Unit trusts are traded at the ruling forward price of the day, meaning that transactions are processed during the day before you or the Manager know what the price at the end of the day will be. The price and therefore the number of units involved in the transaction are only known on the following day. The unit trust fund may borrow up to 10% of the fund value, and it may also lend any scrip (proof of ownership of an investment instrument) that it holds to earn additional income. A M&G unit trust fund may consist of different fund classes that are subject to different fees and charges. Where applicable, the Manager will pay your financial adviser an agreed standard ongoing adviser fee, which is included in the overall costs of the fund. A unit trust summary with all fees and maximum initial and ongoing adviser fees is available on our website. One can also obtain additional information on M&G products on the M&G website. The Fund may hold foreign securities including foreign CIS funds. As a result, the fund may face material risks. The volatility of the fund may be higher and the liquidity of the underlying securities may be restricted due to relative market sizes and market conditions. The fund's ability to settle securities and to repatriate investment income, capital or the proceeds of sales of securities may be adversely affected for multiple reasons including market conditions, macro-economic and political circumstances. Further, the return on the security may be affected (positively or negatively) by the difference in tax regimes between the domestic and foreign tax jurisdictions. The availability of market information and information on any underlying sub-funds may be delayed. The Manager may, at its discretion, close your chosen unit trust fund to new investors and additional investments by existing investors to make sure that it is managed in accordance with its mandate. It may also stop your existing debit order investment. The Manager makes no guarantees as to the capital invested in the fund or the returns of the fund. Excessive withdrawals from the fund may place the fund under liquidity pressure and, in certain circumstances, a process of ring-fencing withdrawal instructions may be followed. Fund prices are published daily on the M&G website. These are also available upon request. The performance is calculated for the portfolio. Individual investor performance may differ as a result of initial fees, the actual investment date, the date of reinvestment and dividend withholding tax. Purchase and repurchase requests must be received by the Manager by 13h30 (11h30 for the Money Market Fund) SA time each business day. All online purchase and repurchase transactions must be received by the Manager by 10h30 (for all Funds) SA time each business day.
